The department has research laboratories supporting studies in archaeology, sociocultural anthropology, linguistic anthropology, and physical anthropology. The department and the Field Museum of Natural History have a joint program whereby students can, under the direction of a curator, use the collections and facilities of the museum for research projects. Students interested in pursuing a course of study in the conservation of anthropological materials should contact faculty at the Field Museum.

The Department of Anthropology and the School of Public Health offer a joint degree program leading to a Master of Arts in Anthropology and a Master of Public Health. The joint degree program is designed to offer combined training in Anthropology and Public Health to graduate students intending to advance to the UIC doctoral program in Anthropology or Public Health. Students in the joint program may complete the Master of Public Health in either Community Health Sciences or Epidemiology.

COMMUNICATION

Department of Communication (MC 132)

Head of the Department: Kevin G. Barnhurst
Director of Graduate Studies: Andrew Rojecki

The Department of Communication offers work leading to degrees at the master's and doctoral levels and participates in the interdepartmental concentrations in Gender and Women's Studies and in Latin American and Latino Studies.

The department goal is to produce scholars and researchers who will be critical consumers and producers of research about communication, whether in academic or applied settings, and who will contribute to the growth of knowledge in those settings.

At the master's level, study and research are available in two general areas, media studies and cultural diversity. Because the areas often intertwine, program emphasis is on breadth and integration. Inquiry in media studies ranges, for example, from journalism ethics to electronic media and computer-mediated communication. Cultural inquiry includes language and symbolic representation, critical theory, social inequality and racism, and cross-cultural differences.

At the doctoral level, the program focuses on communication and technology. Students develop thorough understanding of the field, expertise in its theories, skills needed to conduct effective research, and experience teaching in a university setting. They also acquire a specialty from among those recognized in scholarly societies and reflected in current research emphases among department faculty.

A signature feature of department programs is their flexibility. Students pursue individual and professional aims with guidance from an advisor, designing a course of study to reach their own educational goals. Because the department strongly encourages interdisciplinary work, students may study with scholars in allied disciplines.

Admission Requirements

Applicants are considered on an individual basis. Complete transcripts of all undergraduate and any graduate work must be submitted. In addition to the Graduate College minimum requirements, applicants must also meet the following program requirements:

Master of Arts

- Baccalaureate Field No restrictions. Applicants must have the equivalent of 20 semester hours of study in communication or related programs of social inquiry, like political science and sociology.
- Grade Point Average At least 3.00/4.00 for the final 60 semester hours (90 quarter hours) of undergraduate study.
- Tests Required GRE General.

- Letters of Recommendation Three required, at least two of which must be of an academic nature.
- Personal Statement Required; 600 words. The statement should address the way in which graduate study in the department relates to the applicant's career or other aims.
- Writing Sample Recommended.
- Other Requirements Students are only admitted for the fall semester.
- Nondegree Applicants Rarely accepted. Nondegree applicants must submit all credentials and meet the same admission requirements as degree applicants. Nondegree students may not take individual study courses.

Doctor of Philosophy

- Prior Degrees A master's degree in communication or a related field is required. Applicants who have earned (or are completing) a bachelor's degree and plan to pursue doctoral work should apply to the MA program.
- Grade Point Average At least 3.00/4.00 for the final 60 semester hours (90 quarter hours) of undergraduate study, and 3.50 for any graduate study. When other data warrant, the department may grant conditional admission to students with lower grade point averages.
- Tests Required GRE General.

Specialties reflect the organization of the discipline in scholarly societies as well as the current interests and strengths of department faculty. Courses in one or more allied discipline are necessary for most specializations, and students normally take two courses in specific research techniques related to their chosen specialty.

- Examinations Departmental Qualifying Examination: None.
- Preliminary Examination: Required; no later than three calendar years after admission or upon completion of 40 semester hours (whichever comes first).

The Interdepartmental Concentration in Neuroscience is available, as is the Interdepartmental Concentration in Gender and Women's Studies. The framework of a student's program is determined by the major/minor combination that is selected. Within that framework, students in consultation with their advisors construct programs individually tailored to their research interests and career goals. The department also offers course work in instructional psychology and practicum opportunities to develop college-level teaching skills.
